C.L. Hoover Opera House

C.L. Hoover Opera House is a multi-use facility for performing & visual arts presentation, business & professional events, educational & cultural opportunities and civic activities.

The Opera House is a vibrant and productive cultural landmark, home to all of Junction City and Geary County's art agencies: the Junction City Little Theatre, Junction City Arts Council, and Junction City Community Band.

The Opera House has hosted music, dance, theatre, musical theatre, magic, acrobats, comedy, classic and independent films, and children's programming. They hold memberships in the Kansas Historic Theatre Association (KHTA) and the League of Historic American Theatres (LHAT). The C.L. Hoover Opera House underwent a seven million dollar restoration and re-opened to the public on October 3, 2008, after a 26-year hiatus. Its roots stretch back to 1880, when the building was first constructed as a public hall for $12,000, and the back portion was used as an Opera House.
